maker is followed by a successful drive for new members.

GOOD NEWS AS TO ROADS

movement that normal life will be started soon. The fact that the roads are in such a state of repair is a great relief to the motorists.

Hearty support of the Youghiogheny Automobile Club on the part of the tobaccoists of this section was not only shown at the initial smoker which was held last night at the Baltimore Hotel, but also in the fact that the tobaccoists have organized a new organization.

At the smoker, the officers, directors and committees selected at the last meeting of the organization were unanimously elected. Charles Frank, president of the club, outlined the aims and objects of the club and declared that the club is to be an instrument for the betterment of road conditions throughout all Northern Pennsylvania, and pledged that it would play a leading role in the improvement of the roads.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 20.—Bootleggers who contracted to supply rum runners in Detroit with whisky have been so hard pressed for supplies since the law against importation of liquor from Quebec went into effect that they have resorted to organized raids on liquor stocks in private homes.

Scores of homes have been broken into in the last two weeks and large stocks of liquor hauled away. On the West Side citizens have organized neighborhood patrols to protect their property.

Martial Law Throughout Mingo County Proclaimed by West Virginia Governor

CHARLESTON, May 20.—Governor Morgan today issued a proclamation declaring martial law in Mingo county.

What has been termed a "lockout strike" has been in progress in the coal mines of the Mingo field for almost a year, and according to the governor's proclamation a "state of war, insurrection and riot" is and has been for some time in existence.

Soon after the governor's proclamation appeared, Charles S. Keeney, president of District 17, United Mine Workers of America, in a signed statement, called upon all non-union miners in the Mingo field to strike and promised them union benefits, while they were idle.

"Large bodies of armed men," Governor Morgan said in his proclamation, "have assembled in the mountains of Mingo county and fired into and shot up public and other buildings and fired into passenger trains while passing over the Norfolk & Western railroad. Many lives have been lost and much property destroyed as a result and riots and bloodshed in still rampant and pending."

Governor Morgan also declared that the county authorities were unable to "put down or control such insurrection and riots and have been and are now powerless to enforce the law" and called on him as governor of the state and commander-in-chief of the militia forces.

Governor Morgan's proclamation recited that the period of martial law shall remain "until the necessity therefore ceases to exist, provided, however, that the civil courts of Mingo county shall continue to have jurisdiction of and try all crimes, misdemeanors and offenses against the civil law."

The proclamation then details the rules which shall control the civil population as long as martial law shall be in effect. Public assemblage is forbidden in any part of the county except by special authority, as are parades or demonstrations against the authorities.

No person except municipal, state or federal authorities, militia, police or other officers of the law are permitted to carry arms or have them in their possession. Explosives, ammunition or other munitions of war are also forbidden "except at their homes or places of business."

All military and other officers shall have the right of way in any street or highway through which they may pass and any persons encumbering or remaining in the street or highway for the purpose of interfering in any manner whatever with the rights of citizens or property of Mingo county shall be arrested, detained and imprisoned.

All persons are admonished by the governor to observe and carefully apply with the civil laws of the state and the "letter and spirit of this proclamation and these rules and orders and any person or persons violating same shall be arrested, detained and imprisoned."

Among the most drastic paragraphs shall remain "until the necessity therefore ceases to exist, provided, however, that the civil courts of Mingo county shall continue to have jurisdiction of and try all crimes, misdemeanors and offenses against the civil law."

EVERYTHING SET FOR "BOOSTER" DAY TOMORROW

Baseball Season Here Will Open With Irwin As Independent's Opponents.

PARADE BEFORE THE GAME

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Band Will Furnish Music; Towns, City Officials and Officers of Ball Club Will Occupy Automobiles; Game at 3:30.

Acclaimed the best ball park in this vicinity, Fayette Field should prove a success for all devotees of the national pastime tomorrow afternoon, when Connellsville's own Independents open their season with the Irwin team.

For the past five years champions of Westmoreland county. The visitors will come prepared to give the locals one of the hardest-fought diamond battles of their career. Irwin will be well taken care of in the pitching department, as Field Manager Ferguson, a veteran himself, will have Kluge, Hill and the redoubtable Vic Tootman to back him up.

Manager Hauser of the locals may send in "Rabbi" Hauser, the peppery little scouter of Ambridge, to oppose the visitors. Hauser is at the top of his form at the present time. Slender Ralph Herrod of Pittsburgh, the Independents' mainstay all through last year, will also be on hand to enter the box should he draw the assignment.

With at least a half hundred applications from players of ability, who are more than anxious to don an Independent uniform, Hauser will have a supply of first-class players, in fact almost enough to form a team of his own. The players who will probably start the game are: Hauser, pitcher; Jones, catcher; Jack Walsh, first base; Hobe Fisher, second; Ernie Fisher, short; Bonshousky, third. The outfield will be graced by Kurtz, "Chip" Francis and Danny Taylor. The last named a Mon Valley star. On the bench to get their turn will be Smiley, King, Hartzell, Laback and at least a half dozen more.

The Irwin line-up will be: Miller, pitcher; first base; Ray, second base; Bright, right field; Simpson, third base; Laughner, middle field; Pines, short stop; Adonis, catcher; King or Tootman, pitcher; Dias and Ferguson, utility.

With a hard fought opener in prospect and the game a "booster" one, Connellsville's old ball park should be jammed to the fences. The new grandstand will eclipse any that ever graced the enclosure. Should it not be fully completed, it will not be on account of the club, but because of impossibility to get enough carpenters at this time.

As a fitting tribute to the wonderful change that Fayette Field has undergone, the club will open the season with a blaring of trumpets. The Baltimore & Ohio band has volunteered to render music for the occasion. Promptly at 2 o'clock the band will meet at the Baltimore & Ohio Y. M. C. A., where the players of both teams will dress and a line of march will be formed, in which fully a half hundred automobiles will take part. The parade will be held at the disposal of the club will be used. Into these wagons the players of the two teams, city officials and members of the club, with their many friends will go to Brimstone corner, where several selections of music will be played. Then a march through the city will take place. Business houses have expressed a desire of lending color to the scene by having flags waving from noonline on.

Undoubtedly a new element will enter into the baseball season here, one that was lacking last year—the "fair sex." Last year the women fans were at a disadvantage because of lack of proper seating accommodations. With the new stand it is expected that the fairer citizens of this community will turn out as strong as the male element.

"Booster Day" comes but once a season in baseball and it is hoped everyone will be on hand to give the local Independents a royal send-off. The game will be called promptly at 3:30 o'clock. Edlie Wall of Scottsdale will umpire.

D. T. H. S. CLASS PLAY Will Be Presented This Evening at Leisenring Auditorium.

There has been a large advance sale of tickets and a packed auditorium will witness the play.

THERE ARE MANY WAYS a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity of digestion from the normal condition of health and happiness. A baby may "cry," a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant demand for attention, a fretful or irritable expression of the face, these ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know their own child's signals, or perhaps they do not act naturally as the cause of their baby's suffering. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the case of any baby there should be remedy at hand as early as possible as Fletcher's Castor.

Castor has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has secured the approval of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other medicine. The benefits of the harmless and the good results secured.

Castor is given to babies as essentially a baby's remedy and not a mother's remedy. It is the mother's remedy. What a mother can do for her baby is to follow the directions. When the baby is better, the mother is better.

BREAKING COAL BUYERS' STRIKE A GRAVE PROBLEM

If Not Solved a Shortage Next Fall and Winter Is Inevitable.

200,000 MINERS NOW IDLE

And Their Dependents in Distress Because of Unavailability of the Coal Which is Necessary for Heating and for Very Vital Public Concerns.

How to break the "buyers' strike," if such it may be called, affecting the coal industry is one of the grave and immediate problems confronting the government in its executive and legislative branches, says Senator Davis of Ohio, in the Coal Review. It has been the subject of cabinet meetings and is now before Congress. The reason for the coal shortage is the action of the coal industry in immediately and primarily connecting itself with the three factors, namely:—

Upward of 200,000 miners are out of employment and their dependents in distress.

Certainly unless the public soon starts buying in its supply as usual at this time of the year, fall and winter will mean a very serious coal famine.

Sudden restoration of a market and an attempt to crowd the hauling of the bulk of the nation's coal in the fall and winter months will place upon the railroads a burden which they are admittedly unable to adequately discharge. That will mean simply a repetition of the so-called coal famine of last year, which was so a calamity.

If the proposed bill before Congress, which would prohibit the use of its fuel supply in ample season by purchasing and directing a reduction of seasonal freight rates on coal. That idea put into practice might prove effective. If it should it is hardly likely to meet with the present critical situation with the desired promptness. That hope would be likely to come rather late.

Under existing freight rates and similar matters, when the prices for soft coal are as low now as they are likely to be. They are less than those established by the late Fuel Administration, which allowed, according to Dr. Garfield, an average profit of 45 cents the ton. Since then, during 1920, the miners secured an increase in two installments of 47 per cent, which increase was written into the present wage scale under government supervision, and which expires on April 1, 1921. It is therefore useless to hope for a reduction in wages as an aid to lower soft coal prices this year. Wages and freight rates are the main supports of the present market prices.

The point is that if the consumers of bituminous coal are withholding orders and contracts expecting any substantial reduction in prices, they are doing so at the expense of the coal industry. They are taking a risk that they may not afford to take.

Since 1914 the soft coal industry has had to sustain six successive increases in wages. Those increases have added, it is estimated, $1,750,000,000 to the cost of each ton. On a yearly production of 350,000,000 tons this would represent an increase of $5,000,000,000 in the cost of coal. For long distances from the mines the freight rates are higher than $3 a ton.

The increase of $1.60, applied to a yearly production of 350,000,000 tons, represents an advance in the cost of soft coal to the consumer and the country over an amount of freight rate charges of $225,000,000. Taken together, advances in wage scales and in freight rates since 1914, it is estimated have added $1,750,000,000 to the yearly cost bill of the nation.

The conclusion to be drawn from these figures is that (1) the wages paid to the miners are too high; (2) that any reduction in freight rates on coal is likely, if it comes and when it comes, to be too late to correct the present situation before the damage has been done; and (3) that the grave concern felt by the officials of the government over the coal situation for next fall and winter is justified.

It is the duty of the government to see that the coal industry is kept in a position to supply the country with coal in the fall and winter months. It is the duty of the government to see that the coal industry is kept in a position to supply the country with coal in the fall and winter months.

The public duty to the country and to the coal industry is to lend a hand and to cooperate.

Wholesalers See Big Demand From Europe For Coal

With England's stock fast diminishing and the possibility of famine to the mines during the period of non-production, says a statement issued by the Wholesale Trade Association of New York, American exporters believe that Europe will buy much of her coal in America.

The statement continues, "and few contracts have been signed. Buyers are purchasing only for immediate needs and much of the coal sold is at or below the cost of production. Wholesalers see no possibility of further reduction of prices under the stand taken by John D. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who recently declared that mine workers will not accept a reduction in wages.

Numerous mines are now closed because the present market price is below the cost of production. The best bituminous coal is being offered on contract at $3.50 to $4.00 per ton. But coal prices remain unchanged at $3.50 to $4.00 at the pits. The effect of exports on the supply is problematical, but it is a fact that each day without buying, brings the country nearer a coal shortage.

Users of both bituminous and anthracite are urged to buy coal now, when the prices are low and there are favorable conditions for delivery.

Safety Experts Coming

DEMAND FOR STEEL LIGHTER BEFORE IT IS HEAVIER, BELIEF

Arrival Not Expected Before August
No Material Increase Before
October 1 Is Opinion
Special to The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The American Metal Market, and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:
The common view now is that demand for steel will be lighter before it is heavier. The production of steel since April 1st has averaged about 90 per cent of capacity, and production in the next three months, or to the middle of August, is considered likely to run below that percentage. August is the earliest month set in predictions for a revival in demand, but it is generally believed that demand will have increased materially by October 1. An increase of one-half, however, would not bring the steel industry up to an operating rate of 50 per cent, while before the war a 50 to 60 per cent rate was commonly regarded as the lowest for the winter, consecutive times. The difference is due largely to the great increase in capacity.

The finished steel prices developed five weeks ago are being held quite well as the general market. Reports of cut prices being made are not numerous, and at the most they refer to exceptional cases, that would not make the common market. The really serious test of price stability, however, is still to come.
The lake vessel rate on iron ore is likely to be developed before the end of the week, at a reduction from the $12.24 rate with which last season closed. Ore prices may be developed shortly afterwards. The season's movement of lake ore is likely to be about 30,000,000 tons, or less than half the movement in 1916, 1917 or 1918.

Consumers of iron and steel feel that safe prices for pig iron and steel prices cannot be developed until freight rates are down and there has been further reduction in the labor cost. At the present time, however, the cost of consuming steel is a greater deterrent influence on consumption than is the mill price of the steel. Labor in the building trades in particular needs a radical readjustment.

FURTHER DECLINE IN BEEHIVE COKE GAIN OF 5% IN COAL

Weekly Tonnage of Former Less Than the Daily Average a Year Ago
Coal Above 7,000,000 Tons

According to the report of the United States Geological Survey production of beehive coke in the United States during the first week of May again declined. The total output is estimated at 70,000 net tons, a decrease from the week before of 2,000 tons. The extreme depression in the industry is shown by the fact that the tonnage for the week was less than the daily average during the first four months of 1920.

Cumulative production for 1921 to date now stands at 2,015,000 tons, less than 25 per cent of that in 1920.
Production by states, compared with the corresponding week of 1920 was as follows:

	1921	1920
Pennsylvania and Ohio	16,000	251,000
West Virginia	1,000	28,000
Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia	6,000	47,000
Virginia and Kentucky	2,000	20,000
Colorado	2,000	5,000
New Mexico	2,000	5,000
Washington and Utah	2,000	5,000
Total	30,000	370,000

The recovery in production of soft coal gained additional momentum in the week of May 7. The total output, including lignite and coal coked at the mine, is estimated at 7,298,000 net tons, an increase, when compared with the preceding week of 225,000 tons, or nearly five per cent.
Production during the first 108 working days of the past five years has been as follows, in net tons:

	1915	1916	1917	1918	1919	1920	1921
1915	182,822,000
1916		191,581,000
1917			148,787,000
1918				180,171,000
1919					128,352,000
1920						182,822,000
1921							182,822,000

Professor Budlong Puts Tanlac To Test

PROF. C. J. BUDLONG, Manchester, N. H.

"It's an actual fact, I'm in good health to this first time in 30 years and I owe my present splendid condition to Tanlac and nothing else," was the emphatic statement of Prof. C. J. Budlong, well-known and highly respected citizen of Manchester, N. H., residing at 42 School street.
"Practically all my life I had had rheumatism, and when I say rheumatism I mean every word of it. It was all over my body and especially bad in my feet and legs and there were times when I couldn't get from my bed to my chair without help. And from the time I was a boy I couldn't get down and eat a good meal without being in misery afterwards and I would have terrible pains around my heart and frequent attacks of palpitation and dizziness.
"I had a stubborn case of constipation, was troubled awfully with blind sleep was. My suffering had almost made a complete nervous wreck of me and I was so weak I wasn't worth a nickel as far as work was concerned. I thought my troubles had a life-long grip on me and was about as discouraged as a man ever gets.
"Well, before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I realized it was different from anything I ever tried. It suited my case exactly. And now for almost the first time since I can remember I can eat anything I want and digest it. I haven't a ache or a pain and have gained 15 pounds in weight. I just feel good all over and am full of life and energy these days. Everywhere I go I talk Tanlac. It hasn't an equal.—Adv.

Government War Films to Be Shown Here Next Week

Wednesday and Thursday of next week the United States government official war films will be shown at the Soloman theatre, under the auspices of the Milton L. Bishop Post, The American Legion. These remarkable films take the public through the war from beginning to end. The War Department sent men of the Signal Corps along with the troops in battle and the soldiers were smashing the German lines, moving picture cameras were clicking in order to show the folks back home just what the boys went through. The brave men of the Signal Corps have made it possible for the public to see the doughboys as they lived the life of battle at Chateau Thierry, as they smashed the Hindenburg line, as they wiped out the St. Mihiel salient and for good measure, polish off the Hun in the second battle of the Argonne drive. Included in these films are pictures of the Pennsylvania fighting troops. No greater division was sent against the Hun than the 28th Iron Division on the Keystone state. There are a number of pictures of this division. Before every scene is a title of the day, the division and companies and the place where the fighting occurred. This will prove extremely interesting to the public, and they will be admitted to themselves or find families' speech out of their mouths.

Artillery, smashing the way for the men, Infantry attacks, German airplanes being shot down, gas attacks and "actual" battle scenes with the Yankees fighting for every foot of ground. All these promise thrills and cheers.
Undoubtedly, the Soloman theatre will have the largest crowd in its history. The afternoon showings take place at 2:15 and 4 and the evening at 7 and 9 o'clock. The school children will be admitted to the 7 o'clock show for a special price.
Theatrical at Cumberland.
"Boy Forfeit," a farce, a farmer, and "Frieda Christen," both of Meyerdale, Pa. will be shown at Cumberland.

TENNIS CLUB TO MEET ON MONDAY NIGHT

The Connellsville Tennis Association, with a view to giving a more permanent basis to the organization and providing a means of securing proper grounds for a clubhouse, will hold a meeting Monday night in the Unity Presbyterian church rooms in North Pittsburgh. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock. The tennis club is one of the largest in the city and it was suggested that if the proper interest was taken, a "push" might grow into something as big as a country club.

The main object, however, is to enlarge the present grounds and get a site belonging to the club. In addition to this there is a considerable routine business to be taken up. The tennis club has already reported that Friday May 27, has been determined on as the date for the annual dance.

The Pirates are proving aces in the East this week. In two games with Brooklyn the Buccaneers have won both and to make things worse for the Easterners, yesterday the Pirates won the Pittsburgh lead for first position.

Members of the Connellsville Tennis Association are beginning to take more interest in the challenge tournament which opens on Monday. It is so arranged that it will give the players an opportunity to meet every other member of the association and will also keep up interest in the game until the close of the season.

The C. T. Class of the First Presbyterian church and the Oyster class will meet in a social at the Sixty Acres tonight.

Children will be admitted to the independent-league game Saturday at Fayette field for a quarter.

LEISUREING IS EASY WINNER OVER BITER

The Leisureing No. 3 baseball team got going strong again yesterday and today with Biter on the latter's grounds, finally ending the game with a score of 15-2. The visitors scored in every inning but the fifth, seventh and eighth.

Biter got to Polly for nine hits but tight fielding kept the men on bases. Leisureing walked up 15 safeties and in spite of the fact that 15 runs were scored, 10 were scored on bases. Extra base wallows were plentiful. Extra base wallows were plentiful. Extra base wallows were plentiful.

CONSPIRACY CASE

Against Blamings Operators and Miners Deported Until Fall.

Further proceedings in the case in which 228 bituminous coal operators, miners, dealers and corporations were indicted by the federal grand jury in Indianapolis on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust act probably will go over until next fall, it was announced after the arraignment of a number of defendants last week.

The defendants represented in court included 20 operators who live in Indiana, the officers and members of the United Mine Workers of America who were indicted, the three retail dealers indicted and a large number of corporations. The non-resident operators and the National Coal Association and others are fighting removal proceedings to the jurisdiction of the Indiana court, and did not appear for arraignment.

Motions to quash the indictment, removers to the indictment, motions to quash the service and pleas at bar were filed by attorneys for the defendants.

At the Theatres

THE SONNEX.

PRISONERS OF LOVE.—A delightful picture with Betty Compson in the stellar role. The feature picture today and will also be shown tomorrow. Miss Compson is seen in the role of Blanche Davis, a girl who is possessed through inheritance of a dangerous degree of physical attractiveness. Her father, Wesley Davis, millionaire banker and clubman, has been years attracted to the wiles of unscrupulous women while his wife, although aware of his duplicity, suffers in silence. Davis becomes obsessed with the idea that his daughter carries her flirtations with her youthful admirers beyond the bounds of propriety. Father and daughter clash when she discovers him presenting a check to an adventuress as a means of soothing her "injured feelings" because he will not acknowledge her publicly. Giving up all claim to her father's fortune and all, Blanche leaves home, goes to San Francisco and obtains employment in the law offices of Martin Blair and James Randolph. Both fall in love with her. Blair's affection is wholesome and restrained while Randolph is open in his

THE PARAMOUNT.

"BLACK ROSES."—With Sessue Hayakawa in one of the best roles of his screen career, is being shown today and will also be presented tomorrow. "Black Roses" from the pen of R. Richard Schayer, talented screen writer, is one of the most interesting productions in which the famous Japanese star has been seen for some time. It contains all the elements of the successful photoplay and one which will appeal to every type of audience. It is a story in which thrills, romance, intrigue, love interest, and dramatic force fight for supremacy, and in which the leading character is interpreted by the most dramatic actor on the screen today. The picture also offers the spectator a story which unweaves itself around unusual and lavish settings. There are scenes in the drawing rooms of society leaders; on the grounds of a palatial estate; in the equatorial and romance of New York's Chinatown; in the grim atmosphere of Sing Sing and in the extremes of the financial district where fortunes are made and lost. In the feature attraction tomorrow, the twinkling of an eye. A notable Shirley Mason picture are distinctly regarded by many as the strongest ever assembled for one production, appears in support of the Sessue Hayakawa, Taro Oaki, (Mrs. Sessue Hayakawa), is seen in the leading feminine role.

THE ORPHEUM.

"PLANE OF YOUTH."—A story of a blind girl and golden innocence, a part as that of the little Belgian foundling who is the heroine of

"Plane of Youth." The scenes are laid in the Belgian countryside and in the quiet quarters of Paris. The theme is love, innocence, and art. The combination arouses interest and the name of Howard M. Mitchell as director adds assurance that the production is of the highest quality. The picture is a fine one, very different from anything the house has played before. Yet, having celebrated for his exactness in production, the director has not overlooked the element of human interest in the story. ## WILSON WAS FOND OF AND TOLD MANY HUMOROUS STORIES

Woodrow Wilson left his body in a regular, healthy and not infrequently in the gift of his brilliant mind relaxed itself by yielding to its keen appreciation for a humorous story—either the telling or hearing of it. I do not think there was ever a cabinet meeting when he did not illustrate his views with a story. Sometimes from his own experiences; sometimes from incidents which had happened overseas. It was not always a funny story, but it often was.

I remember when we were getting letters threatening all sorts of dire things, and the newspapers were full of rumors of spies and plots and treachery and treason, the President told this story—new to most of his listeners:

When Benedict Arnold was given a royal commission to destroy the revolutionary cause, he went south. There he met a North Carolina patriot who was visiting Arnold. "What," asked Arnold, "would the people of North Carolina do to Arnold if they were to capture him?"

"Well," the North Carolina said, "they would cut off his leg, injured when he was bravely following Washington and give it an honorable burial. Then we would hang the balance of him."

Bunker as a British Province.
After we entered the war and found ourselves in close association with the allied nations there was naturally a lot of good-natured chaff of an international sort. That much of it should relate to England was the inevitable consequence of earlier history. The President, who knew the English people well and liked them, took great enjoyment out of these stories which were told in their presence.

I recall his telling us of an incident which happened when he was spending a summer in England in the years before he entered the White House. The bishop of North Dakota was in England on a visit, he said, and it was announced that he would preach a church service from where he was staying, so I decided to go to hear my old friend's fellow countryman. Soon entering the church—a little church in London—a man of about 60 years of age, dressed in a suit and tie, overheard another visitor inquiring of the English clergyman, who was standing near the door, "Who is to preach this service?"

"He forgot his name," replied the clergyman, "but he is the bishop of North Dakota." The Englishman, however, insisted that the bishop of North Dakota had just been killed in the war. The Englishman, however, insisted that the bishop of North Dakota had just been killed in the war.

The President's sense of humor was also evident in his joke at his own expense. He could laugh at himself. He was satisfied he was doing the right thing, but he was not absolutely certain it would bring the results he sought. He could get the viewpoint of the public and of his critics on the series of notes he had addressed to Mexico. So he met the question of the cabinet member with the following story:

Once upon a time a gentleman who had a garden was greatly annoyed because his neighbor's chickens would fly over the fence and eat or scratch up his young vegetables. He told his neighbor of the bad behavior of his chickens, and received the promise that it should not happen again. But it did happen again and again, and finally in a rage to protect his vegetables, he wrote a sharp note to the neighbor, demanding that his chickens be protected from his garden.

The neighbor was distressed and wrote in reply promising that the garden would be more protected by his chickens. The very next day after receiving the written promise of protection, the neighbor saw his garden being literally devoured by the neighbor's chickens. Patience had ceased to be a virtue. In righteous wrath he strode over to his neighbor's house, and demanded to know why he had not kept his promise.

Neighbor Is Shocked.
"You don't say," answered the neighbor, "that my chickens are in your garden again, do you?"
"Come and see," said the now irate owner. And there were the chickens busy destroying the garden.
"Well, I never was so surprised in my life," said the owner of the chickens. "To show you my determination to protect your garden, when I received your letter, I called all my chickens together and read them your letter and solemnly charged them not to go into your garden again. I am astonished and humiliated to find that they have done just the opposite. They did not heed the command and got out of your garden."

I never knew the President, before, during or since the war, when he did not have a pet limerick to enliven the incident under discussion, or to change the subject. If the debate needed to be closed or given a new turn.

Baby Fussed All the Time

Sykes Comfort Powder Healed His Skin & Stopped All Fussing

Lawrence M. Mass. "My oldest child was badly chafed, fussed all the time, and the only way I could do anything with him was to keep soft clothes next to his skin. I tried several powders but nothing helped him until I heard of Sykes Comfort Powder. I bought a tin of it and after everything else had failed and stopped all fussing. My child is now as healthy as a horse. I have heard of it being successful in such cases because it contains six healing ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. For twenty years it has been used and endorsed by physicians and mothers, and nurses call it 'A-1' and 'Wonder'."

—and by the way, that office is the finest in Washington and finer than any government office I saw in Europe. Among the trophies displayed were the beautiful silver gifts which had been presented to Commodore Smith by his faithful service. My aide pointed to these with much pride.

"He did the English," said Sir Robert. "Name sounds familiar, but I confess I can not recall what he did," and he turned to the aide officer for enlightenment. It came promptly.

"He did the English," Sir Robert answered my aide. The British ordinance expert saw the point and laughed heartily.

In the days when the President was trying to straighten out the Mexican situation, the policy of "waterfront waiting," so much misunderstood and so frequently misrepresented, provided the paragraphs and jokes which with material which they worked and overworked.

The criticism and ridicule to which his program was subjected by his political opponents did not disturb him. He had certain aims upon which his purpose was definitely set. He was resolved that his policy should be free from selfish interests, either national or individual; and that he would not permit the United States to aid Mexico in making "government by assassination" a success.

Criticized by "Interests."
The President was sharply criticized by the "Interests" behind the scenes of their disappointment over his refusal to recognize the assassin. Later he was criticized because he gave the Mexicans a chance to conduct their own government, unimpeded and unhampered by interests, British or American, which were eager to exploit Mexican resources.

It is my own opinion, offered here on the side, that Mexico possessed no oil or mineral wealth to excite the cupidities of outsiders, she would long ago have been able to obtain a stable government.

The President was patient with state papers they were and will hold their place among the great documents of American diplomacy—in the hope of reaching an amicable adjustment of differences. But his critics made fun of the note writing, and one day, after he had read to us one of these letters, a member of the cabinet said to him:

"Mr. President, do you think your letters will produce the desired results?"

Tells a Chicken Story.
The President's sense of humor was also evident in his joke at his own expense. He could laugh at himself. He was satisfied he was doing the right thing, but he was not absolutely certain it would bring the results he sought. I had returned to one of our meetings from Savannah, where the President's father had at one time served as pastor of the Presbyterian church. I think it was during the war between the states. I gave him a message from some friends of his youthful days, and the meeting being over and no one else being present, he became reminiscent and talked so interestingly that I long overstepped my time.

What a story it would make, that intimate, delightful, recollection of scenes and incidents, if a dictionary had taken down his tender reflections. Reminds him of a limerick.

"As I told you," President Wilson said, "You know a limerick about a boy always takes hold of me. I don't think of it at the time, but the limerick is sure to come into my mind. Did you ever hear the limerick of the young man of Savannah?"

"I had not heard it."
"It reminds me of nothing connected with my knowledge of Savannah, but when you spoke of the city this limerick leaped up—it runs like this: 'There was a young man from Savannah,

Who fell on a banana,
The words that he said when he fell on his head,
Would not do for a Sunday school banner."

Some days, and we had those days, particularly when we were in the twilight zone of neutrality, and after the war, when a shell-shocked world forgot the vision splendid with which we entered the war—I recalled that the only Presidents who ever conducted a great war were alike in two things—they had infinite patience in their efforts they made to secure what they believed in without resort to war; and, too, they obtained relief from the terrible pressure which lay heavily on both by the possession of a fund of stories and a humor that was racy of the soil. It did more than bring relief from heavy burdens to both of these great war Presidents; it gave them strength and courage to face the task that often bore quite as heavily upon the cabinet members as upon their chief.

For many years, himself an expert critic, acknowledged his indebtedness to the members of the cabinet (concurrent with the article.)

A STORY OF THE BUILDERS OF DEMOCRACY

BY IRVING BACHELLER

COPYRIGHT IRVING BACHELLER

"Pardon me—you see the firm is busy," said Abe. "You know, Bob Zane."

"Pardon Me—You See the Firm is Busy."

used to say: that he was never so busy in his life as when he lay on his back with a broken leg. He said he had to work twenty-four hours a day doing nothing and could never sit an hour off. But a broken leg is not so bad as a lame intellect. That says you out with the firm, and the name of ignorance. Jack Kelson recommended Kirkham's pills and pointed to a picture. "I'm trying both and slowly getting the better of it. I've learned three confessions from customers, this afternoon."

The sleeper, whose name was William Berry, rose and stretched himself and was introduced to the newcomer. He was a short, genial man, of some thirty years, with blonde, curly hair and mustache. His face cheeks had a color as definite as that of the blossoms on his shirt, now rather soiled. His prominent nose shared their glow of friendly opulence. His gray eyes wore a look of apology. "Mr. Traylor, this is Mr. William Berry," said Dr. Allen. "Mr. Traylor has just acquired an interest in all our institutions. He has bought the Gollaber tract and is going to build a house and some fences. Abe couldn't help get the timber out in a hurry so we can have a raising within a week. You know the arts of the ax better than any of us."

Abe looked at Samson. "I reckon you and I would make a good team with the ax," he said. "It looks as if he could push a trough with one hand and build it up with the other. You can bet I'll be glad to help him. I should think Bill or Jack Kelson could look after the store for a few days," said the Doctor. "I promised to take Mr. Traylor over to Jack Kelson's tonight. Couldn't you come along?"

"Good! We'll have a story-telling and get Jack to unloose his guns," said Abe. Jack Kelson's cabin, one of two which stood close together at the western end of the village, was lit by the cheery blaze of dry logs in its fireplace. There were guns on a rack over the fireplace under a hawk's head, a powder-horn hanging near them on its string looped over a nail. There were wolf and deer and bear pelts on the floor. The skins of foxes, raccoons and wildcats, adorning the log wall, looked as if they had been smooched, good-looking, merry, hearted Scot, about forty years old, of a rather slight build, some five feet, eight inches tall. That is all that any one knew of him save that he spent most of his time hunting and fishing and seemed to have all the best things, which great men had said or written, on the tip of his tongue.

"Welcome! and here's the best seat at the fireplace," he said to Samson. "My wife and daughter are away for a visit and for two days I've had the cabin to myself. Look, ye washers, of fire, and see how fine it is now! The homely cabin is a place of beauty. What a heaven it is when the flames are leaping! There is Roger's line of beauty, nothing perpendicular or horizontal."

He took Abe's hand and went on: "There, ye lovers of romance, is one of the story-tellers of Ispahan who has in him the wisdom of the wandering tribes. He can tell you a tale that will draw children from their play and old men from the chimney corner. Mr. boy, take a chair next to Mr. Traylor. Mr. Traylor, you stand up as proud and firm as a big pine. I believe you're a Yankee."

"So do I," said Samson. "If you took all the Yankee out of me I'd have an empty skin."

Then Abe began to show the stranger his peculiar art in these words: "Stephen, Nickles, used to say: 'God's grace embraces the lines of the sea and the uttermost parts of the earth. It takes in the Equinox and the Hottentots. Some so so far to say that it takes in the Yankees but I don't go so far."

Samson joined in the good-natured laughter that followed.

"If you deal with some Yankees you take your life in your hands," he said. "They can serve God or Mammon and I guess they have given the devil some of his best ideas. He seems to be getting a lot of Yankee notions lately."

"There was a powerful prejudice in Kentucky against the Yankees," Abe went on. "Down there they used to tell about a Yankee who sold his horse and was driving them to town. On the way he decided that he had sold them too cheap. He left them with his driver in the road and went on to town and told the buyer that he would need help to bring 'em in."

"How's that?" the buyer asked. "Why they let 'em go on to runnin' through the woods and fields and we can't keep up with 'em."

"I don't think I want 'em," says the buyer. "A speedy hog hasn't much pork to carry. I'll give ye twenty bits to let 'em off."

"I guess that Yankee had one more hog than he'd counted," said Samson. "Whatever prejudice you may find here will soon vanish," said Kelson, turning to the newcomer. "I have great respect for the sturdy sons of New England. I believe it was Theodore Parker who said that the pine was the symbol of their character. He was right. Its roots are deep in the soil; it towers above the forest; it has the strength of tall men and the substance of the builder in its body. While in its waving branches and turning in its veins I thought of this when I saw Webster and heard him speak at Plymouth."

"What kind of a looking man is he?" Abe asked. "A big, erect, splendid figure of a man. He walked like a ram at the head of his flock."

Abe who since his story had sat with a sad face looking into the fire now leaned forward, his elbows on his knees, and shook his head with interest while his gray eyes took on a look of animation. The story speaks of the "well of sadness" on his face.

"He is a very great man," Abe exclaimed. "Have you learned that last noble fight of his in the battle of Haynes, as you promised?" Kelson asked.

"I have," said Abe. "And the other day when I was tramping back from Bowlin Green's I came across a drove of cattle and stopped and gave it to them. They all let up of the grass and stood looking."

"Good! Now stand up and let us see how you imitate the great chief of the White clan," said Kelson. The lank and awkward youth rose and began to speak in a high-pitched voice that trembled with excitement. He lowered and steadied and rang out like noble music on a well-played trumpet as the channel of his spirit filled with the mighty current of the orator's passion. Then, indeed, the words fell from his lips like the winter snows.

"They shook our hearts as the wind shakes the branches of a tree," Samson wrote in his diary. "The lean, heart body of the boy was transfused and as I looked at his face in the firelight I thought it was handsome."

"Not a word was spoken for a minute after he sat down. I had got my first look at Lincoln. I had seen his soul. I think it was then I began to realize that a man was being made among us more precious than the gold's even a man more precious than the golden wedge of Ophir."

The Doctor gazed in silence at the boy. Kelson sat with both hands in his pockets and his chin upon his breast looking solemnly into the fire. "Thank you, Abe," he said in a low voice. "Something unusual has happened and I'm just a little scared."

"Why?" Abe asked. "For fear somebody will spoil it with another hog story. I'm a little began to speak the lines in a high-pitched voice.

of anything I can say. I would venture this, that the man Webster is a prophet. In his Plymouth address he hears receding into never-returning distance the clank of chains and all the din of slavery. It will come true.

"Do you think so?" Abe asked. "Surely—there are so many of us who hate it. These Yankees hate it and they and their children are scattering all over the midlands. Their spirit will guide the West. The love of liberty is the salt of their blood and the marrow of their bones. Liberty means freedom for all. Wait until these babies coming off here by the wagonload, have grown to manhood. Slavery will have to reckon with them."

"I hate it, too," said Abe. "If I live I'm going to hit that thing on the head some day."

"Do you still want to be a lawyer?" Kelson asked. "Yes, but sometimes I think I'd make a better blacksmith," said Abe. "I'm trying to make up my mind what's best for me."

"No, you're trying to decide what is best for your friends and your country and for the reign of law and justice and liberty."

"But I think every man acts from selfish motives," Abe insisted. Doctor Allen demurred as follows: "The other night you happened to remember that you had overcharged Mrs. Traylor for a jug of molasses and after you had closed the store you walked three miles to return the money which belonged to her. Why did you do it?"

"For a selfish motive," said Abe. "I believe honesty is the best policy."

"Then you look that long walk just to advertise your honesty—to induce people to call you 'Honest Abe' as they have begun to do?"

"I wouldn't want to put it that way," said Abe. "But that's the only way out," the Doctor insisted, "and we know ones would have to call you 'Honest Abe.'"

"There's a hidden Abe and you haven't got acquainted with him yet," Kelson interposed. "We have all caught a glimpse of him tonight. He's the Abe that loves honor and justice and humanity and that great temple of freedom that is growing up here in the new world. He loves his better than fame or fortune or life itself. I think it must have been that whose voice sounded like a trumpet just now and who sent you off to Mrs. Peters with the money. You haven't the chance to know him that we have. Some day you two will get acquainted."

At this moment there was a loud rap on the door. Mr. Kelson opened it and said: "Hello, Eli! Come in. A hairy-faced, bow-legged man, bent under a great pack, partly covered with bed ticking, stood in the doorway."

"Hello, Mr. Kelson," the bearded man answered. "The poor wandering Jew has come back again—hey? I think I

W. A. TODD, FRICK CHIEF SHIPPER, DIES SUDDENLY

End Comes to Well-Known
Scottsdale Man at Home
Wednesday Night.

ACUTE INDIGESTION THE CAUSE

Came to Coke Region in 1872 as Time-keeper for Contracting Firm Engaged on Southwest Pennsylvania Road; With Coke Company Since '79

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTSDALE, May 20.—William A. Todd, chief shipper of the H. C. Frick Coke company and one of Scottsdale's best-known citizens, died suddenly at his Eleanor avenue home at 11 o'clock on Wednesday night. Mr. Todd had accompanied Mrs. Todd to Pittsburgh on Wednesday for a visit with their daughter, Mrs. E. A. Keller, and had taken dinner in Pittsburgh with Mrs. Todd, returning here at 8 o'clock. Mr. Todd had not been in good health since he attended the banquet of the Frick Veterans in Connellsville and after reaching home Wednesday evening had a physician summoned. He improved for a short period and again a physician was called but Mr. Todd died before the physician arrived.

Mr. Todd came to Scottsdale as timekeeper for Collins Brothers, contractors, in 1872 when the South-west branch of the Pennsylvania railroad was being constructed. After the completion of the road he was made freight agent at Everson. In 1879 he became chief shipper for the H. C. Frick Coke company whose output at that time was a few cars, and had been with the company since, giving his time and energy toward the building of the company until the shipping capacity now is 2,260 cars a day.

Mr. Todd was one of the organizers and first president of the Frick Veterans' association. He was a member of St. John's Roman Catholic church and one of the charter members of the Scottsdale council of the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Todd is survived by his wife and the following children: Mrs. E. A. Keller, Pittsburgh; Miss Elizabeth Todd, Washington, D. C.; Misses Eleanor, Ann and Juanita Todd, at home; and one son, W. G. Todd, Boston, Mass.

Funeral services will be held at St. John's church on Monday morning at 9 o'clock and interment will follow in St. John's cemetery.

Fifty Females Initiated

The regular monthly meeting of the Vulture No. 46 was held at the Legion rooms on Thursday evening. Fifty P. G.'s were initiated, they coming from Mount Pleasant, West Newton, Greensburg and Scottsdale. A parade was held over the principal streets, headed by the Scottsdale Military band, after which the business meeting was called to order by the chief-degus and in the regular order of business the initiation took place at which time the 50 candidates started their journey through the trenches of France in the box car with which all rookies are familiar.

After the initiation, an elaborate banquet was served on the dance floor of the Legion rooms. The members of the military band were guests of the Legion. Visiting comrades were present from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. Covers were laid for 165.

Westmoreland vulture is now two months old and has already a membership of 100, with prospects that the membership will grow to at least 200 within the next three months. A membership campaign is now being conducted at which time the initiation fee is lowered to $3.50. This campaign is for 60 days only. The vulture is the "playground of the American Legion" and those enjoying a good time "among sociable buddies" should join the 40 Females.
